Out of the Depths Psalm 130

One of the reasons I love the Psalms and turn to them so often is because they help me express those things I feel deeply, but have trouble adequately putting into words. Psalms express the highs and lows of the human condition in the context of God's righteousness, presence, and love. Psalm 130 is no exception.

"Out of the depths I cry to you, O Lord. Lord, hear my voice! Let your ears be attentive to the voice of my supplications!" The psalmist is in such dire distress that he uses the metaphor of the watery depths of the earth to describe those troubles that threaten to overwhelm him. The psalmist feels as if he is drowning in his distress and being drawn irredeemably away from all that is good and life-giving. There are times in our lives when it seems that everything is stacked against us and we have nowhere to turn except to God, so we cry out, begging the Lord to see our difficulty and act on our behalf.

"If you, O Lord, should mark our iniquities, Lord, who could stand?" The psalmist recognizes that sin—separation from God either through things we do or we don't do—is the force that creates alienation between us and God and between us and other people. The psalmist also recognizes that if God were to keep track of our sinfulness, we would be lost beyond any hope of God's help.

"But there is forgiveness with you, so that you may be revered." The psalmist has acknowledged that on his own, he is unworthy of God's intervention, but the great, good news, and there is always great, good news with God, is that it is God's nature to forgive so that we can approach God with reverence and awe. God's forgiveness is unmerited. We can't earn it because it is given as a gift of grace. We can only accept it with humility and thanksgiving. This is the theme of the Biblical narrative and the heart of the gospel of Jesus Christ.

"I wait for the Lord, my soul waits, and in his word I hope; my soul waits for the Lord more than those who wait for the morning, more than those who watch for the morning.” Think of a night when violent storms descended on the area where you were. Perhaps the power went out and you could hear torrential rain, see the wind whipping the trees about in the flashes of lightning, and you could hear the crash of thunder and the crack and groan of trees being broken and uprooted. From your vantage point in the dark you were helpless and frightened. You longed for the relative safety of daybreak so you could at least see what was going on. This gives us some sense of what the psalmist meant by waiting on the Lord. When we call out to God, we have hope even in the midst of turmoil that our prayers are heard, and we anticipate God’s answer.

“O Israel, hope in the Lord! For with the Lord there is steadfast love, and with him is great power to redeem. It is he who will redeem Israel from all its iniquities.” We are able to have hope in God’s power and willingness to redeem and rescue us due to the very nature of God. When the psalmist says “For with the Lord there is steadfast love” he is using the Hebrew word hesed. I am not a Hebrew scholar by any stretch of the imagination, but I have learned this word because it is one of those small words that means so very much as it describes the nature of God. Steadfast love is usually how hesed is translated in English Bibles, but it also carries with it the meaning of everlasting trustworthiness, loyalty, mercy, generosity, compassion, grace, and faithful love even when the object of that love is faithless. God’s hesed is made manifest in the life, death, resurrection, and reign of Jesus Christ. God’s great love is our hope in the midst of all our troubles, whatever they may be.

Heavenly Father, we give you thanks that you are always there to hear us and help us. Teach us to trust you more completely so that we can live our lives more completely for you and give honor to your holy name. In Jesus name we pray. Amen.

Children of Ukraine

This youngster lives in one of the children's homes in Kryvyi Rih, Ukraine's seventh largest city and the largest in the Dnipropetrovska Oblast. The Dnipropetrovska Oblast borders the two Russian-leaning regions, Donetsk and Luhansk. As of today, March 1, the fighting is 3 hours away. They were hit on Thursday night by rockets from the Russian forces but it's been quiet since.

Many wonder what they can do in this tragic situation. Here's one option. We still have a funding channel open to the children's homes in Kryvyi Rih. The urgent funding needs are generators and food and medical supplies and can still be purchased locally, though they are in short supply. Donations may be made at the following Facebook link and will be sent immediately. Alternatively, grants and donations may be sent to "Peacework" at 620 N. Main St., Suite 306, Blacksburg, VA 24060. Peacework is a volunteer program affiliated with Community College Ministries in Blacksburg. There are no fees. 100% of the donation will go to the orphanages in Ukraine and donations are tax-deductible.
